LOCAL BRIEFS.

THE SKATING RINK for a matinee to-day.

LIPMAN calls attention this morning to some bargains.

THE TEACHER'S Association meet in the Fourteenth Ward schoolhouse to-day at 11 o'clock.

JOHN R. WINDER, Jr., yesterday secured judgment against W. Timms and others in court "as per stipulation on file."

WHEAT is stiff with an upward tendency. Our market quotations show that old wheat now brings 65 cts. at the mills here.

ANOTHER CASE of diphtheria was reported to the Quarantine Physician yesterday. It is located in the family of Joseph Hackwell, who resides in the Nineteenth Ward.

R. D. HOGG yesterday moved for the admission to the bar of F. Kessler, and J. Boyle, J. R. McBride and J. A. Marshall were appointed a committee to examine him as to capability.

THE BOWERS-LONDON Bank case still drags its slow length along in Judge Zane's Court. Messrs. Royle & Beskin yesterday filed up the whole day addressing the jury for the defense.

SALT LAKERS will probably have the pleasure of hearing Nevada after all. It was learned yesterday that she has secured the 7th of December, at the Salt Lake Theatre. Carleton opens at the Opera House this evening.

THE THEATRE held a very small audience last evening, on the occasion of the second production of the Skating Rink. The piece will be presented for a matinee this afternoon, and the company will leave for the west by this evening's train.

LACE on Thursday evening a wagon cover was missed from a wagon in the rear of the Electric Light Works. A search by the officers resulted in its being found in the hands of a boy, who was taken to the station and released.

"WILDERNESS ROVING," a building material extensively used in England and one that created a good deal of comment at the New Orleans Exposition has made its appearance here. Mr. Frank Pascoe being the agent. Its particular virtue is that it can be applied at once on the rafters without the need of sheathing, and no shingles are needed to cover it.

W. J. JENNINGS & SONS' woolen mills have just turned out a grade of superfine blankets for fineness of texture and handsomeness of finish excel anything yet either made or imported here. At first sight the work is so fine, and the wool so superior in quality that it resembles merino. The name of the "Deveraux Blanket" has been given the article. They weigh ten pounds and measure 72 by 88 inches.

THE HALF given under the auspices of the students of the Salt Lake Theatre a year ago, was undoubtedly one of the most enjoyable affairs ever occurring within the walls of the Theatre. Conscious of their success in the past, the same gentlemen who managed that affair have secured the house for a couple of days, and will give a grand ball in the evening, and a children's ball the following day. Further particulars will soon be ready for the public.

JOHN FASER, the mild-mannered, blue-eyed individual who was arrested on Saturday evening charged with stealing hams from the butcher-shop of Fred J. May, appeared before Judge Spiers for sentence yesterday. If he was not as innocent as a babe unborn of the crime alleged to have been committed, he is certainly one of the most finished actors that ever appeared in the Police Court. His answers to all questions were prompt and decisive, and the innocent, far-away look in his bright blue eyes nearly melted the adamant heart of the prosecuting attorney. The sentence pronounced, however, was that he serve a period of sixty days on the public works.

"The Place of Beverages."

The Occidental bar, where the choicest of wines, liquors and beers are manipulated in the most tempting fashion by the experienced proprietors. The family trade and private parties supplied. Best of California and imported wines and fragrant cigars always in stock.

A. B. & MURPHY.

THE greatest bargains which M. H. Lipman has promised his customers, have begun to arrive, and all people who are friends to their own pockets will do well by calling on him.

A TIMBER PROTEST.

A Strong Paper to Secretary Lamar.

MORE LUMBER ABSURDITIES.

Citizens of Utah Point Out to the Department Some of the Wild Inconsistencies of the New Rules.

People who had been astonished to learn of instructions given land and timber agents from the Department of the Interior a short time ago, will stand aghast when they know that another order has been promulgated to the effect that timber can only be cut on government land by those who design using it for their own personal wants. Such a howl went up from every mining region in Montana over this order and so formidable a protest was sent to Washington against it that the Department telegraphed its agents to suspend operations until the affair could be more closely looked into. In Utah, there has risen scarcely less concern over the ruling, though it has not yet taken the form of any demonstration. The mining companies in Park City, however, have just received an intimation that they were to be "investigated," and yesterday several prominent business men took the matter in hand, got up the following petition and sent it on to Washington last night:

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah,
November 19th, 1885.
To the Honorable Secretary of the Interior,
Washington, D. C.:

Your petitioners, residents of Utah, engaged in mining, farming, merchandizing, banking, stockraising, lumbering and all other kinds of business, having heard that the Interior Department contemplates the prescription of new rules for the restriction of the use of timber growing on the public lands in Utah and other Territories, beg leave to represent:

That neither mining nor any other business whatever can be carried on in Utah and Territories similarly situated without the use of timber for building, fencing, mining, railroad, fuel, etc. People must have the use of the scanty timber supply native to the country, or they cannot live here at all, any more than they could without the use of the water in the streams or of the air that blows over their fields. All the timber in the country belongs to the government, only, however, as trustee for the people, and the government has provided no way in which the people can acquire the right to use it.

Suits are now pending in the courts of Utah against sundry persons for trespass, the trespass being in using the public timber. Such suits have been instituted from time to time during the last quarter of a century, but they were seldom, if ever, pressed to a final issue, because they were seen to be unjust; that it was the government—the law—and not the people, that was in fault.

In this dilemma, it has been the practice of the Interior Department to endeavor to prevent waste of the public timber and to wink at the trespass on payment by the trespasser of a certain percentage of the value of the timber used as a bribe. This was not only a wise action, proceeding from a comprehension of the necessities of the case as all government action in the end must, but for that very reason, it was the only action that was or is practicable. If, now, this policy is to be abandoned and the law strictly enforced it surely behooves a wise government to provide some way in which the people can lawfully secure the use of the timber growing in the country.

There are objections to the selling of the timberlands outright, to applicants; being very limited in quantity, they would pass into the hands of speculators, probably of corporations, a monopoly would result, and the price of lumber be doubled or trebled to the consumer. Timber in Utah, seldom grows in heavy bodies, or as large trees, but straggling, scattered, the trees small and clinging for the most part to the precipitous northern declivities of the mountains, in high altitudes, on absolutely worthless land, but for the timber. It would be extremely difficult and expensive to survey great part of them. And were it to be provided by law that our timber lands might be purchased at the government price, or at double the government price, it is questionable if 20 per cent. of them would ever be bought, because it would not pay.

In our judgment, the better course would be, to continue the policy of the past; and if there is no law for it, to make law for it. As to the rule said to be contemplated by your office permitting the timber to be used only by those who intend to cut it for themselves, it doubtless proceeds from a laudable desire to prevent or restrict speculation in the public timber; but it is an error to suppose that speculation in the public timber, so far at least as this Territory is concerned, is possible. All the timber cut by lumbermen in Utah is used in Utah; not a foot of it is exported; competition in lumbering is as close as in other countries and our lumbermen make no more than a fair profit on their business. They may be by the strict letter of the law, trespassers—they certainly are not speculators. They are trespassers of the division of labor which obtains here as elsewhere, and for the same sufficient reasons, and whatever their guilt as trespassers, all the people who buy lumber of them and use it, are equally guilty. Are the lumbermen to be made scapegoats, for all the people? or are all the people to be prosecuted as trespassers?

To suppress the lumber business in the mining territories, if it were possible, would be equivalent of suppressing all business; and that would stop the yearly output of $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 of the precious metals, and force half the inhabitants, after bankruptcy to seek homes and business elsewhere. Your petitioners can not bring themselves to think that our government was constituted or is maintained for any such gratuitously harsh and tyrannical work as that; but rather to be an advantage and aid to those who authorize and support it, viz. the people.

The least that the government can wisely do, in view of the facts and the law, is to continue the policy of the past, appoint timber agents to guard against waste, and to collect stumpage. But if it proposes to abandon that policy, we respectfully represent that it has no right to do so until it shall have first provided a way for the people to acquire these lands, for it must be obvious that no people can be held in fact, whatever they may be in law, as trespassers for making the necessary use of the timber growing in the land they inhabit. No government has the right to so restrict them absolutely, nor can any government acquire any such right or enforce it.

We ask simply that if we are to be restricted from using the public timber as in the past, paying whatever stumpage may be demanded—means be provided whereby it can become or be made private timber. And it seems to your petitioners that no request could be more reasonable or carry more weight.

FROM THE DELEGATES.

A Good Time en route—The Reception at Denver.

CHEYENNE, November 20, 1885.

Special to THE HERALD.

The Utah delegates to the St. Louis convention arrived here right side up this morning. Part of the company breakfasted at the Inter-Ocean and the rest rustled at the railroad house. After wandering around for a short time, we again boarded the train, and are looking forward to our reception at Denver. Our Pullmans have attracted attention all along the route, and are generally commented upon. So far we have had a very pleasant time, and everyone is well and happy.

The following dispatch came to hand late last evening:
DENVER, November 20.—Three hundred cattlemen, delegates to the National Cattle Growers' Convention, assembled here today from Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, and California, and left for St. Louis on a special train of eight sleepers this evening.

PROVO POINTS.

"MORAL BRAND," with local favorites, in the cast, and a booming audience at the Opera House, to-morrow (Saturday) night.

H. E. RAWLINGS, our favorite tenor-soprano artist, moves into his elegant new quarters, about one block east of his old barber shop, next Monday.

J. E. ARMISTEAD, the man who fell from the roof of his new house last week, and thought his neck was broken, notwithstanding Dr. Pike's assurance to the contrary, is recovering nicely, though still confined to his room.

ABOUT a dozen heroic young men from the Second Ward started up Provo Canyon this morning in the rain, to camp out and each haul a load of wood for the poor of that ward. The fact of these young men going to the canyon in the present condition of the weather to get wood for the poor, is evidence that they are each worthy of a commendation. We have a list of their names, which any young lady may inspect on application to the secretary of the toll road.

Provo, November 20, 1885.

TO BE REGRETTED.

A Boyish Quarrel with Serious Results.

Last Sunday night Isaac Wadley and Hogen Nielsen, of Pleasant Grove, got into a row, which resulted in young Wadley stabbing Nielsen in the short ribs with a pen knife. The wound is not necessarily dangerous, but the lad is suffering from the effects. Young Wadley had been hearing before Alderman James O. Bullock yesterday, and the lad was bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury. Both boys are quite young, and it is considered a boyish and unthoughtful quarrel, without any real intent. The parents of the young men are very much mortified over the sad affair.

The Mikado in Logan.

All the details have at length been arranged and our friends in Logan, "where dwelleth a lovely maiden named Yum Yum," will have the pleasure of seeing the Mikado in their city on next Thursday and Friday evenings. As the Company have a holiday date for an opening they are certain of doing a good business, though the number of chorus, orchestra, stage hands, etc., is so heavy that there is no expectation of any money being made.

APOSTLE SNOW ARRESTED.

And it Takes Only Seven Deputies to Do It.

Special to THE HERALD.

BRIGHAM CITY, November 20.—Early yesterday morning a squad of deputy marshals—seven in number—left Ogden in conveyances. They arrived at Brigham City about 6 o'clock, and immediately repaired to the house of Apostle Lorenzo Snow, which they entered and thoroughly searched from cellar to garret. It is said that the first search resulted in a failure, but that the second search resulted successfully, and Mr. Snow was secured. The house was entirely surrounded, and one would be led to expect, from the number of deputies employed, that they intended to arrest half the town. Although so early in the morning, the movements of the officers attracted much attention, and when they emerged from the house with their prisoner, there was some talk of rescuing him. This, however, Mr. Snow objected to, and told the friends that had assembled that he preferred to go in peace. He then invited the deputies to take breakfast with him, but the officials declined, and he immediately prepared to accompany them to Ogden. Mr. Snow and the officials making their trip in a carriage. The event created considerable excitement, which is not yet abated. Several members of Apostle Snow's family have been summoned to appear before the Grand Jury at Ogden, and it is understood that they will leave for that place on this afternoon's train.

Special to THE HERALD.

OGDEN, November 20.—When Apostle Snow, accompanied by his numerous body-guard, arrived here, he was immediately taken before Commissioner Black and gave bonds in the sum of $500 to appear when wanted. Messrs. D. H. Peery and H. S. Young became his sureties. An examination was set for 8 o'clock this evening before the above Commissioner, but at that hour further proceedings were postponed until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time several witnesses summoned from Brigham City will be present. The incoming of the deputies and their prisoner caused quite a flurry of excitement here.

Miss Nellie Colebrook was subpoenaed yesterday to appear at Ogden at 10 o'clock this morning. In response to the questions of a HERALD reporter last evening, Miss Colebrook said she had no idea in whose case she was wanted, although it might be that it was in the case above referred to.

An old-time story of Bronson Alcott, of Concord, is now going the rounds of the press and is good enough to bear repetition. The philosopher was holding forth one day on the benefits of a vegetable diet. He said that the pork eater gradually grew to look like a hog, and the beef eater in time resembled a bull in his intellectual qualities. An attentive listener at this point quietly asked Mr. Alcott if there was not great danger that a vegetable diet might make a man finally resemble a very small potato.

The Druggists' Journal reports a case of poisoning from postage stamps. It seems that the gum on the back is capable of absorbing foreign matter floating in the air, which may find its way into the system through the mucous membrane of the mouth and tongue of those who lick the stamps before applying to letters.

MINING INDUSTRY.

Steady Advancement in the Direction of Production and Profit.

The past year has widely extended the limits of the mineral fields of this country and shows a marked advancement in the necessary knowledge and requirements to utilize to a better advantage than ever before the vast resources which have been revealed.

The shoutings upon the stock exchanges have not attracted much attention, and the seller of prospect holes at fabulous prices has not received a warm welcome or much money, but a question whether the close of any year in the history of mining development has ever shown more substantial advancement in the direction of production, permanent and profit. Not only have we a better knowledge of the wide extent and variety of the mineral resources of this country, but the mineral scientist and inventor have kept pace better methods and better facilities than ever before for mining, treating and utilizing the product of our mines. The substantial character of the improvements and the real permanence and value of mining as a practical industry have been so thoroughly demonstrated that to-day its worth and advantages are receiving the recognition to which it is most thoroughly entitled.

Capital seeking a safe and reliable investment, finds here the element of stability unaffected by the fluctuating influences which jeopardize and destroy other enterprises. Labor finds a field where the product is not in danger of destruction or loss from unforeseen and unavoidable vicissitudes. These factors are becoming manifest in the consciousness of the people and the future of one of our greatest industries is already brightened into real assurance of healthful activity and good development as the truth is made known and the blossoms of its promise ripen into the golden fruitage of reality.—Chicago Mining Review.

MORE TROUBLE IN IDAHO.

Several Shots Exchanged between Citizens and Deputies.

There was considerable talk in town yesterday of some rumored trouble at Franklin, Idaho, a telegram in the Tribune stating that some one or other had been shot. Later details by the Deseret Telegraph line, however, state the matter as follows:

Deputy Marshals Bennett and Green came to our town and searched two or three houses, it is supposed in search of polygamists, and finally succeeded in arresting Thomas Lowe, Sen., on the charge of violating the Edmunds law, and put him under
